

ZiF WORKSHOP

What the Nose tells the Brain: Olfaction and Mental Representation

Convenors: Dr. Thomas Park (Frankfurt/M., GER)
Dr. Peter Schulte (Zurich, SUI)

12 – 14 November 2020

The times in the schedule refer to Central European Time / GMT+1.

THURSDAY – NOVEMBER 12

15:00 – 15:10	Introduction
15:10 – 16:30	Clare Batty (University of Kentucky, Lexington, USA) & Barry C. Smith (Institute of Philosophy, London, GBR): “A World of Odours?”
16:35 – 17:55	Johan Lundström (Karolinska Institutet, Stockholm, SWE): “Is avoidance the main function of the olfactory system?”
17:55 – 18:10	– coffee break –
18:10 – 19:30	Thomas Park (Goethe-Universität Frankfurt, GER): “Do we smell odours or odour sources?”

FRIDAY – NOVEMBER 13

15:00 – 16:20	Thomas Cleland (Cornell University, Ithaca, USA): “Learning is everything: the construction of odor representations”
16:25 – 17:45	Richard Gerkin (Arizona State University, Tempe, USA): “From stimulus to percept: the size, shape, and structure of olfactory spaces in the brain”
17:45 – 18:00	– coffee break –
18:00 – 19:20	Peter Schulte (Universität Zürich, SUI): “Smelling how the world is: the representational nature of olfactory experiences”

SATURDAY – NOVEMBER 14

- 15:00 – 16:20 Becky Millar (University of York, GBR):
“Olfaction and multisensory object perception”
-
- 16:25 – 17:45 Thomas Hummel (Universitätsklinikum Dresden, GER):
“Clinical aspects of olfaction”
-
- 17:45 – 18:00 – coffee break –
-
- 18:00 – 19:20 Andreas Keller (The Rockefeller University, New York, USA):
“What does olfaction represent?”
-